Mr. Tom (1872)

Hon. Eben Alexander.

BORN at Knoxville, Tennessee, March 9, 1851. Son of Judge Ebenezer and Margaret McClung Alexander. Entered the preparatory department of East Tennessee University in 1867, and finished the Freshman year at that institution. Entered with the Freshman Class at Yale in 1869, graduating in 1873. Was a member of Brothers in Unity (one of the two general Societies at Yale), and of the following fraternities: Freshman, Gamma Nu (local); Sophomore, Phi Theta Psi (local); Junior, Psi Upsilon (chaptered); Senior, Skull and Bones. Instructor in Ancient Languages at the University of Tennessee, 1873-77; Professor of Ancient Languages there, 1877-86; Chairman of the Faculty, President State Teachers' Association of Tennessee, 1885-86. Resigned Professorship to accept the chair of Greek at the University of North Carolina in 1886. Granted leave of absence by the Board of Trustees in 1893 to serve as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Greece, Roumania, and Servia. Residence, Athens. Married October 15, 1874, at Knoxville, Tennessee, Marion Howard Smith. They have two sons and two daughters. In 1893, the University of North Carolina conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Salutatory.

WE feel that a peculiar responsibility devolved upon us in the duties of the publication of this sixth volume of The Hellenian. With no experience in such an undertaking, we have used our feeble powers as well as we were able to do under the circumstances, and if we can add one laurel to the former editions we will not have toiled without reward. Whatever may be its imperfections, we have endeavored faithfully to avoid mistakes.

We are glad that our task is done, and proffer our most earnest thanks to those who have given helpful advice and contributed in any way to the subject-matter and appearance of this annual, thus aiding in anything of merit it may possess.

In the brotherly spirit of college fellowship we present this volume, trusting that the facts given shall prove interesting and the jokes furnish enjoyment. We invite a perusal of our labors in kindness to our deficiencies, and sincerely hope that in coming days this souvenir of college life—its scenes, sports, and achievements—during the year ninety-five will serve as a pleasant and inspiring reminder of college days gone.

Proud of the prosperity and progress of our Alma Mater, chronicled in the annals of educational history, we rejoice in the year's benefactions which will add to her great usefulness and power. In this centennial year may the alumni and friends rally to her support by extending the scope of influence. Her past success only gives promise of the possibilities of the future.

We believe that the student-body is bound together by such friendly ties of regard and common sympathy that the best interests and welfare of the University are upon their minds and hearts.

We are, with cordial respect and every good wish for the highest personal happiness and success of our readers,

THE EDITORS.

Sketch of the History

. . . of the University of North Carolina.

THE foundation stones of the University of North Carolina were laid in the darkest hour of the Revolution, after the defeat of the American army on Long Island, before the victories of Trenton and Princeton shed a ray of light into the general gloom. In enacting the fundamental law of the new free State, the patriots of 1776 saw that liberty could not exist among a benighted people. Hence we find in the constitution ratified in December of that year, "All useful learning shall be duly encouraged and promoted in one or more Universities." They realized the impossibility of having public schools without teachers. They further realized that no government can be intelligently conducted without instructed leaders.

Owing to the troublesome times of the war and the poverty which was its heritage, the University charter was not granted until 1789. The convention of the people sitting in the same town of Fayetteville, where the General Assembly was legislating, in the same month voted to make North Carolina a member of the American Union. The Draughtsman of the charter was William Richardson Davie, an eminent lawyer who had been a gallant cavalry officer in the Revolution, afterwards Governor and Minister to France. By his influence, the land warrants granted to the Revolutionary soldiers, who had died without leaving heirs, were set aside on an endowment for the new institution. As these were to be located in West Tennessee, on lands then claimed by the Chickasaw Indians, it was long before they became a source of revenue. It was through Davie's powerful advocacy that the Legislature loaned $10,000 (afterwards made a gift) to be expended in buildings.

The Trustees met for organization December 18, 1789, Charles Johnson, of Chowan, grandfather of the late eminent Dr. Charles E. Johnson, of Raleigh, being the chairman of the meeting. Davie handed in warrants for 20,000 acres of West Tennessee lands, the gift of Benjamin Smith, a Revolutionary hero, afterwards Governor.

At the next meeting, November 15, 1790, Col. William Lenoir, Speaker of the Senate, was made President of the Board of Trustees. It so happens that this excellent man, having on him scars received at King's Mountain, was the last survivor of the forty of North Carolina's best citizens who constituted the first Board of Trustees.

At the meeting of the Board in August, 1792, held at Hillsborough, steps were taken to locate the University. It was agreed to elect one commissioner from each of the eight judicial districts whose duty it should be to select a site within a circle of thirty miles diameter. The center of this circle was to be chosen by the Board by ballot. The following centers were voted for: Raleigh in Wake County, Hillsborough in Orange County, Williamsboro in Granville, Goshen in Granville, Pittsborough in Chatham, Smithfield in Johnston, Cyprett's Bridge in Chatham.

Cyprett's (or Cipritz) Bridge, now Prince's Bridge, on the Raleigh and Pittsborough road, over New Hope Creek, was adopted.

The Commissioners of Location were Wm. Porter, of Rutherford; John Hamilton, of Guilford; Alexander Mebane, of Orange; Willie Jones, of Halifax; David Stone, of Bertie; Frederick Hargett, of Jones; Wm. H. Hill, of New Hanover; James Hogg, of Cumberland, afterwards of Orange. Of these, Hargett, Mebane, Hogg, Hill, Stone, and Jones acted. They reported in favor of New Hope Chapel Hill, in Orange County, at which point 1180 acres had been donated by Col. John Hogan, Benjamin Yergin, Matthew McCauley, Alexander Piper, James Craig, Christopher Barbee, Edward Jones, Mark Morgan, John Daniel, and Hardy Morgan. The great-granddaughter of one of these (Mark Morgan), Mrs. Mary E. Moore, has recently donated to the University his old homestead and about 800 acres of valuable land.

The first buildings were the "Old East," the "Old Chapel," or Person Hall and the President's dwelling, now occupied by Prof. Gore. The cornerstone was laid with imposing ceremonies on the 12th of October, 1793, by Wm. Richardson Davie, then Grand Master of the Masonic Fraternity. Rev. Dr. Samuel E. McCorkle, who in addition to parochial duties, had a flourishing school called Zion-Parnassus at Thyatira, six miles west of Salisbury, was the Orator of the Day.

The doors were opened for students on the 15th of January, 1795. Rev. Dr. David Kerr, acted as President, with the title of Presiding Professor. The winter was of extreme severity. Not a student was present. In a few days, Hinton James, of Wilmington, whose work as civil engineer may still be seen on the Cape Fear, appeared, the first student. By the end of the term in July, the members had increased to about one hundred.

Rev. Dr. Kerr remained only one year, became a lawyer, and by the appointment of Jefferson was the Federal Judge of the territory of Mississippi. The Professor of Mathematics, Charles W. Harris, was a superior man, but he went off into law and died early of pulmonary consumption. By his advice Rev. Joseph Caldwell, then a tutor at Princeton, was chosen Professor of Mathematics and Presiding Professor. In 1804 he was, on the motion of Wm. Gaston, afterwards an eminent Judge of the Supreme Court, made President. For years the young University rested almost entirely on his shoulders.

Dr. Caldwell in 1812, in order to have time to write a book on Geometry gave up the Presidency and confined himself to the Professorship of Mathematics. Rev. Robert A. Chapman, D.D., was then President until 1816, when he resigned the office to Dr. Caldwell, who held it until his death in 1835. Dr. Caldwell was an active and enlightened man. In 1811 he traveled through the State and raised $12,000 for finishing the South Building. In 1824 the Trustees sent him to Europe for the purchase of scientific apparatus, the affairs of the University being then in a prosperous condition. During the latter part of his term the institution was in great straits, but in the year of his death the lands owned by the institution in West Tennessee came into market, and after paying its debts left an endowment of about $150,000.

Ex-Governor David L. Swain, began his administration in 1835 under favorable auspices. During the flush times between 1850 and 1860 the number of students rapidly increased, reaching 461 in 1858. The Old East and the Old West buildings were enlarged one-third in 1848, Smith Hall (the Library) was finished in 1852, and the New East and New West buildings in 1859.

When the Civil War began nearly all of the students and one-third of the Faculty volunteered in defence of the South. Out of the ninety-five Freshmen of 1857-'8 only ten remained to graduate; out of the eighty of the Freshmen of 1858-'9 only one; out of the sixty-eight Freshmen of 1859-'60 only five. Still the Faculty under great privations kept the doors open until Kilpatrick's Cavalry in April 1865, rode into Chapel Hill.

Although the endowment was lost, the doors were reopened in the summer of 1865 but the salaries of the professors not being paid, some of the ablest obtained work elsewhere and the number of students in 1867-'8 was only ninety-two.

When the State government was reconstructed in July, 1868, the old Trustees were turned out of office, and the new set appointed under the constitution of that year vacated all the chairs. President Swain died the 27th of August, in consequence of being thrown from his buggy by a runaway horse. In the spring of 1869 the doors were again opened under a Faculty of which Rev. Dr. Solomon Pool was President. The experiment did not succeed, and in 1870 the exercises were suspended.

In 1875 a new Board of Trustees, chosen by the General Assembly under an amendment to the constitution, elected a new Faculty, Rev. Dr. Charles Phillips being Chairman, and again invited students. The Secretary and Treasurer, Kemp P. Battle, succeeded in raising $20,000 mainly from the Alumni for the repair of the buildings, which was done under the superintendence of Mr. Paul C. Cameron. In 1876 Dr. Battle was induced to accept the Presidency. In 1881 was procured from the General Assembly an annual appropriation of $5000, which added to $7500 a year interest on the Land Grant enabled the institution to expand to some extent. In 1885 was procured $15,000 a year in addition, but the succeeding General Assembly founded the Agricultural and Mechanical College, at Raleigh, and transferred to it the interest on the Land Grant, leaving the University $20,000 per annum, in addition to tuition and interest on endowment funds about $5000. In 1890, the History Chair was endowed with about $33,000 by Alumni and others, and Dr. Battle, being wearied with fifteen years of active executive duties resigned the Presidency and was unanimously elected Professor of History. Dr. George Tayloe Winston was the same year, 1891, with similar unanimity, made President.

From 1877 to 1885 there were held by University authorities Summer Normal Schools, attracting from three hundred and fifty to four hundred teachers and those preparing to teach. In 1885 Memorial Hall was dedicated; in 1887 the Gymnasium was finished, and an addition made to Person Hall, the Chemical Building, and other laboratories fitted up. The Law School has been greatly enlarged and last year numbered sixty-six students. A Medical department has been added and a dissecting room erected. The Library room in Smith Hall has been fitted with alcoves and the libraries of the two Societies have been consolidated with that of the University. New Professorships have been added from time to time. In fine, the University ranks with the best. It has a flourishing Summer School for Teachers, one of Law, one of Geology, and one of Biology. It has a Scientific Society (the Mitchell), a Historical Society, a Shakespeare Club, a Philological Club, a Glee Club, and an Athletic Association.

History of '95.

SOON the Class of '95 will be no longer an active factor in college life. Four years are ended, and an eventful four they have been. The class and the administration of George Tayloe Winston began together, and they have grown together in strength and influence. The years have been years of growth and development. As the present strong, self-reliant executive has come from the scholarly Professor of Latin, so the thirty-nine men of '95 to-day are a part of the eighty-eight boys that began college life so short a while ago.

Greater in numbers than any other class since the reopening, it contains, perhaps, a larger proportion of honor men than any for many years; possibly, the largest percentage in the history of the institution, but other opportunities for culture than those afforded by books have not been neglected. The influence of the class has been decidedly felt in all phases of the University life. It has not hesitated to discard precedent when adherence would have cramped the expanding life, but it has established better customs instead. While the channel of college life has been widened, yet the workers have been conservative. Above all, the members have cultivated self-respect, and next, respect and love for the University.

But the course here is done. That the time spent here in our little world has given us power to work better in the broader scope and fiercer competition of the great world without, and ability to meet the presented issues squarely, is our parting hope.

History of '96.

IN this, the University's centennial, '96 greets one and all with happy hopes and gladsome confidence. In its endeavor to keep pace with others, and to touch shoulders with them in worthy comradeship and honorable rivalry, '96 has no ragged record to present. Our year's history is one of which we are proud, of which we boast with a good conscience. '95 boasts of her large numbers, the largest Senior Class since the war; but with our fifty-six may we not expect to outrival even '95 in the number of graduates?

With our many predecessors, we give to Junior year its just award. For us it has been a year of pleasurable profit, a turning point in our college course, a long step forward, let us hope for each of us, on the road of true development and life.

We have this year enjoyed larger liberties, wider experiences,—a fitting preparation, we hope, for the dignity of Seniority.

The former factions which divided us have been fortunately united, and we present an unbroken front with a single set of class officers.

In athletics we are easily supreme. With six men on the foot-ball team and a '96 man for captain next year, with four crack players on the base-ball team, with the champion tennis player of college, with men at the front in every department of college athletics, our class pride is not without foundation. Our class foot-ball team, though weakened by our strong representation on 'Varsity and scrub teams, was yet at the front in inter-class games, and might have won the championship, had the full series been played.

Not only, however, in athletics is the leadership of '96 felt. In scholarship we challenge favorable comparison with the best classes. Nine of our men are members of the honor society, Alpha Theta Phi.

This, the great centennial of the University, anticipates a great commencement. The officers of this occasion are fortunately men of '96, and in the efficient and worthy men chosen for these duties abundant satisfaction and honor may be expected.

To the University student each year appears his best and happiest. So it has been with '96, so may it be with her remaining year. May it witness the severance of few bonds of happiness, but the formation and strengthening of many more.

History of '97.

THE Class of '97 on entering the University in the fall of '93, enrolled the largest number of members, which has been seen since the ante-bellum days, and at the end of that session it counted a hundred and eighteen men. Of these, forty-eight failed to appear in September, but several new ones have helped to make up the loss.

Our otherwise prosperous year has been greatly saddened by the death of two class-mates, William H. Green and James A. West, in both of whom the class has lost most promising members.

Since our arrival at Chapel Hill, we have been second to none, either in the class room or on the ball field, and our men are among the first in every branch of college life.

During the present year, we have for the most part busied ourselves in wishing to be through with Soph. Greek and "Conics," and in longing for the days when all things shall be "elective" and there will be no more March examinations.

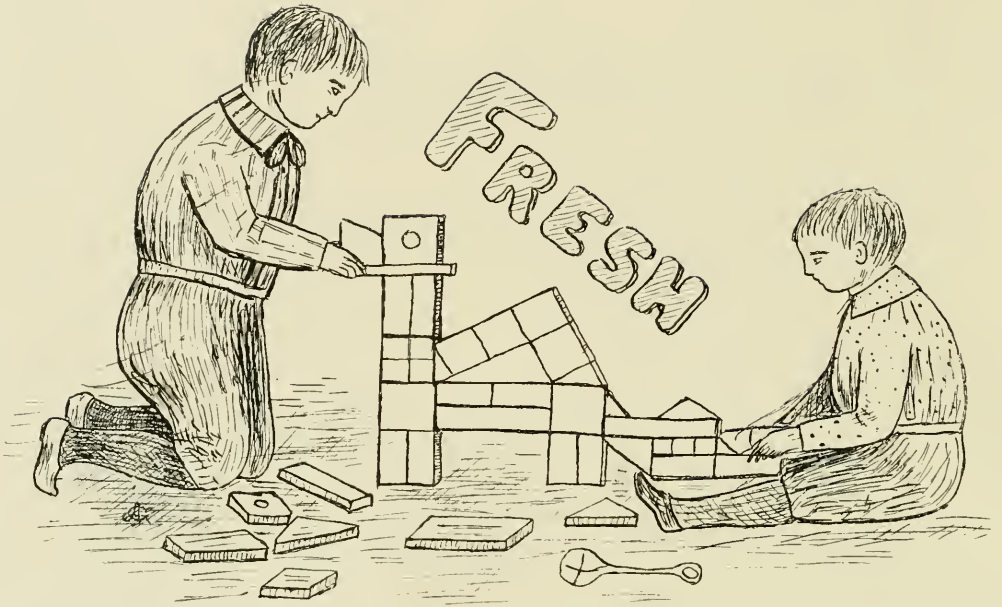

In the inter-class football games last fall, we took the second place, and have fair hopes of putting out a good "nine" this spring.

On the whole we are passing our time very profitably, although one of the professors daily remarks that we are in the usual Sophomoric lethargy.

*Class of '98.

THE Fresh class numbered a hundred and thre men in the faul most of whom returned after the Christmus holodays. 8 new men came in after christmus fetching the role upto 111. The class of 9ty-ate though no cheekier than the average fresh class (?) has had every thing from the first day of our arival to make HER so. our flatering reseption at the train by the y. m. c. a. (?) comitte was enouf to create in our MINDS very exalted opinions of our own empor-tance. not-with-standing the gigantic proporsions these opinions asumed the sofomores allowed them to go through the natural process of shrincage and Evaporashun unaded. And only in extreem cases did They assist by word and deed (allways kindly and gently) in hastening to bring about the desired result i. e. the meak and lowly freshman. When one Sofimore became two philanthropic in this work of reconstructing the Freshman from the green and raw material and was remonstrated with by the fackulty the whole fresh class signed a petision for the fackulty to forgive him. this same enthoosiasm was the indirect cause for holding our first class Meeting. Some of the newspapers said that their was Hazing at the university, so the Fresh Class met and passed resolutions to the affect that the reports were without any foundation whatever.

It is uncertain who drew up those resolutions. our first class Elexion was an impromptu affair, the men were hurriedly "drumm-ed up." the sofimores asisted materially in this work and afterwards kindly retired from the room. when the House was called to order, they entered in a body and the usual cerimonys were gone through with.

Immediately after this unsuccessfull meeting a croud of energetic spirits went round among the boys and announced that an Elexion would be held that same night. the sofs tho not invited did us the Honor to turn out in full force. but the room was two small to hold both classes so We thought it best to prevent there entrance untill after the Elexion was over, I do not know of another case on record where a fresh class have succeeded in carrying out it's Elexions so early in the year and at the first real attempt—certainley their is not a recent paralel.

President graham called the class together early in february for the purpose of adopt-eng class colors, yell and motto. a HISTORIAN was also chosen at this meeting. february 22nd was an eventfull date in the class History. The exersizes on that day were exceedingly interesting and were enjoyd by all. except for the fact that their had benn a plentiful fall of snow we might have become to exsited and over-heated. As it was—we all kept thuraly cool. Many freshmen that day received metals for there qualitys and accomplishments. but I am glad to be able to state that we shared the honors with the upper classmen (a senior was awarded a metal for the Tipical Fresh-man) may we go through college and through life taking our share of the honors and triumphs and allso generously sharing them with others is the hope of the History of the Law Class.

THE other members of the law class will agree with the historian that the history of the present class does not begin with its members, but with our preceptor, loved by all of "his boys" as he calls us.

The Honorable John Manning was born at Edenton, July 30, 1830. His father was Captain John Manning, of the U. S. Navy. On the passage of the ordinance of secession, Captain Manning resigned his position in the navy and tendered his services to his native State. He was commissioned a commander of the navy of North Carolina, but in a short time his health gave way and he resigned his commission and resided at Pittsboro, N. C., where he died.

Dr. Manning graduated from the University in 1850.

In September, 1850, he accompanied his father to South America; returned in July, 1851; read law and was licensed by the Supreme Court in June, 1853, and in 1854 settled in Pittsboro.

He was married in 1856 to Miss Louisa J. Hall, eldest daughter of Dr. Hall, of Pittsboro, and granddaughter of Judge John Hall, late of the Supreme Court.

He was a delegate to the convention of 1861; volunteered in the first company that went to the war from Chatham; was elected First Lieutenant and appointed Adjutant of the Fifteenth Regiment of Volunteers. In October, 1861, he was nominated by Judge Biggs and appointed by President Davis Receiver of the Confederate States, and resigned his position in the army. He was opposed to the secession of the State, and in the convention of 1861 he voted to substitute Judge Badger's ordinance for the ordinance of secession, and failing in that and seeing that war was inevitable, he voted to submit the ordinance of secession to the State for ratification.

In 1870 he was elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat from the Fourth District. He was elected to the Constitutional Convention of 1875, and was Chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections. In 1880 he was a member of the General Assembly and was Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. He was elected by the General Assembly one of the Commissioners to revise the statute laws of the State. In 1881 he was chosen Professor of Law in the University. The degree of LL.D. was conferred on him in 1882 by the University.

The historian is indebted to Mr. Jerome Dowd for this sketch of Dr. Manning's life taken from "Sketches of Prominent Living North Carolinians."

No student having Dr. Manning's certificate has ever failed before the Supreme Court of North Carolina.

The largest number of law students ever collected at the University is justly claimed by the present class since September, 1894. The number being sixty-eight.

In athletics the law class has done much for the University. One of our number was manager of the '94 Foot Ball Team. Two of our number played on the team. One of our number represented us against the famous tennis players of Yale University. Another member of our class is the captain of the Track Athletic Team.

The class is said to have done more work in the study of law than any of its predecessors, but that gloom in these latter days which always darkens the path of a young lawyer will undoubtedly visit us. But in accomplishing so much the class has taken unto itself a great deal of that time which Morpheus calls his own.

It is our sincerest hope that "Manning Hall," which Dr. Winston spoke of at a banquet in his honor, will not be an air castle, and "before many weary moons" we hope there will be such a building here for the many who will come after we are gone to fight the battles of life in this cold, cold world.

And now, fellow students, at this critical moment of our lives, and in conclusion, we say good-bye in sorrow and in joy. In sorrow, because we part. In joy, for it is, we hope, for the making of the better man.

History of Medical Class.

AS all the other classes in the other departments of college work experienced an increase in number, likewise the medical class did not fail to receive its proportionate share of men, for at the opening of the Fall term our roll showed twenty-five men in the class, thus making us the largest in the history of the department.

Year after year, has the excellence of the department been attested by its steady and continued growth, until now the question might be asked, "What does this growth signify?" It but plainly gives evidence of the fact that its merits as one of the best places for a beginner to learn "Physic" have been and are still being recognized; but, after all, what is still more gratifying to his pupils is to be able to say that it is only a continuation of Dr. Whitehead's success as a teacher. And just here it is the Historian's happy privilege to say that it is his sincere belief (and confident indeed is he that he but voices the sentiment of the class to a man) that no history, however short and incomplete, could justify its appearance without some mention of our able and beloved Preceptor, Dr. Richard H. Whitehead. In him, we have ever found not only a most able teacher, but a kind and sympathetic friend, and a gentleman of the highest type.

Upon the Athletic field, the class has taken no very decided stand though in the "Varsity Eleven" we were represented by brothers Denson and Stringfield, both of whom have been honored by having had the occasion to participate in the fierce struggles of the football game; while in base ball, we have as yet developed no material.

As regards our record in the class room, we would refer the anxious inquirer to our honored Preceptor, and we feel no hesitancy whatever in saying that he would credit us as being one of the most studious classes ever under his charge.

On reassembling after the Christmas holidays, it was our sad misfortune to find that we had lost one of our old members, one whom "Dame Rumor" would have us believe, had been assailed so vigorously by "wily Cupid," that he had fallen a victim to his snares, and that he now finds the presence of his "Better Half" much more agreeable than the study of the "Healing Art." That their future may be happy and prosperous is the sincere wish of the entire class.

In years to come, when we, now embryo "M.D.'s," shall have reached the full development of our hidden prowess, and shall have grasped the "Phantom Fame," happy indeed shall we be to give the credit of it all to the valuable training received in the University of North Carolina, where the first principles of the profession were taught us.

The Dialectic Society.

MOTTO—Love of Virtue and Science.

FOR a hundred years the Dialectic Society has been an integral part of the University. Younger by but a few months, the part prospered, declined, and prospers again, just as the whole has done. So closely connected are they that the full histories of the Dialectic Society, its sister society, the Philanthropic and the University must be written together.

The only societies of like nature in the United States whose records are equal to those of the Dialectic and Philanthropic, are those of Princeton, the Whig, and the Clio. The Faculty and Trustees granted exceptional privileges a hundred years ago, and a large share of independence has been retained to the present day.

The literary exercises consist in debates, orations, declamations, and essay-writing. Interest is stimulated by prizes given each year to the one excelling in each of these arts.

Since the inauguration of the first President the regular succession has been maintained. When the University was about to pass into alien hands in 1868, the offices were filled by loyal alumni who were instructed to reorganize whenever they should deem best. This was done in 1875. There is a direct descendant of James Mebane, the first President, now an active member of the society, and often members can point to three and sometimes four generations represented upon the long roll.

The Dialectic Hall contains the finest collection of portraits in North Carolina, these being the likenesses of distinguished members. Among the number are Governors, Judges, Congressmen, Cabinet Officers, Foreign Ministers, a President of the United States, and others distinguished in many professions.

H. F.

The Philanthropic Society.

MOTTO—Virtue, Liberty, and Science.

ON the 12th day of February, 1795, the doors of the University were formally opened for the admission of students, and on August 1, of the same year, W. C. Alston, David Gillespie, Evan Jones, Henry Kearney, George W. Long, Nicholas Long, and Edwin J. Osborn formed the "Concord" Society with Gillespie as first President; but on August 29, 1796, the name was changed to "Philanthropic" Society, and Richard Eagles was its first President.

The Society thus originated continued its regular weekly meetings till 1868, when, until 1875, it was suspended during the dark days of the University. It now has a membership of 119.

Its objects, as originally enunciated, were the cultivation of literary and social virtues. The eminent positions of Vice-President, Senators, Governors, Judges, Clergymen, and all the avocations of life abundantly testify to the thoroughness of its training.

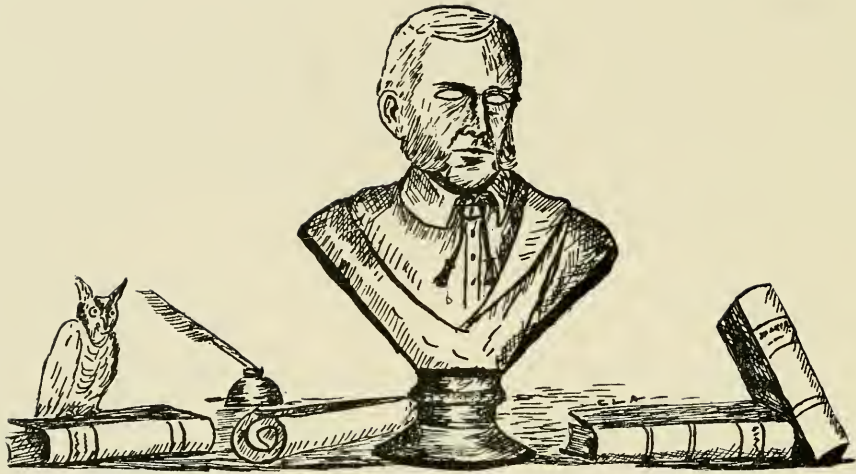

Naturally many changes have taken place during its hundred years of existence, for all organizations must conform to the changed conditions of the times. Among the more recent may be mentioned the making of membership non-compulsory; the turning over of the Library to the University; the negation of many rigid restrictions, and the imposition of more enlightened ones. In all these things it may truly be said that the Society has done eminently well.

As now constituted, the Society has but one aim and function. In this literary sphere it is in keeping with the spirit of the age. It has come to share the honors of College supremacy with the press, the athletic field, a diversity of special studies, and the other societies of the University. Nevertheless, its purpose is more definite ; the summoning of its energies for the attainment of one aim more certain ; and the ultimate realization of that purpose irresistible.

The Shakespeare Club.

THE Shakespeare Club is an integral part of the University life. It has been so long established, and is so successful and interesting a factor that we would not know how to do without it. Apart from its relation to scholarly investigation and general culture, it helps us on the side of social fellowship. For that is the best stimulant and preservative of social fellowship which excites and supports it, while some other high and well-defined end is gained besides mere enjoyment. These literary, historical, and scientific clubs have then a real value for us as human people living with and for one another. But the Shakespeare Club has for its specific object the careful examination of the plays of the great dramatist, of the characteristics of his period, of the relation of the ancient classical drama to the modern romantic drama. Its work thus includes Greek and Latin plays, French, German, and other plays, any literature than can throw light on the development of the drama, and its relation to life.

The last year's programme has been of much interest. The English historical drama was first reviewed. Historical places in Richard the Third were well described, and we enjoyed a fine comparison of Sackville's allegorical method of treating Buckingham's fall with Shakespeare's picture of it. The ethical element in the historical tragedy of Richard was strongly presented. We saw the irony of fate as the retribution for his crimes swiftly overtook him after he had destroyed his minions, and justice and honor triumphed at last. But we were pleased and touched as we worked at the lyrical tragedy of love and death, and heard some very good papers on the social environment of Romeo and Juliet, on the direction of Romeo's love, impassioned though it was, by moral sentiment, on the ice-cold Mercutio, on the skillful handling of minor characters in bringing out the chief actors into full relief, on Juliet as a study in the natural history or the physiology of intense, yet wedded love, on Friar Laurence as no didactic moralizer, but a good fatherly old friend of the family, and especially of the sweet young lovers, and on the play as a whole, in its peculiar character as a tragedy relieved by reconciliations and heart mendings, in the midst of heart-rendings and death. "How not to do it" (dramatically) was next shown in a study of Spenser as contrasted with Shakespeare, and then the brave, frank Orlando and the melancholy Jacques well offset each other. George Sand's Comme Il Vous Plaira was proven to be a fascinating perversion of As You Like It, the wise fool, Touchstone, was delightfully portrayed, and the French and English style of presenting types of character and sentiment well discriminated. The "Marlowe Night" was not a bad one within the hall, whatever it may have been outside. "The mighty line" of Shakespeare's forerunner was exemplified, and the rise of dramatic blank verse intelligently worked out. Two weak kings, Edward the Second and Richard the Second, were seen to prove that "every like is not the same." Ditto, the two queens of these same kings. Mortimer and Gaveston and Bolingbroke were made more real to us. Marlowe's Dr. Faustus was treated as illustrating his "love of the impossible." Goethe's great drama of the soul, Faust, and the sneering devil, Mephistopheles, were critically reviewed. The refined pantheism of Goethe's view of wit, Marlowe's lyrical intensity and sweetness, were other subjects of interest. Time fails to tell of the Greek night of the Club, the discussion of the rise of classical tragedy, the sublime moral conceptions, the lyrical beauty, the excellent illustrative readings of professor and students, and of the closing nights when the Moor's fateful experience and Hamlet's mystery, and the relation of the novel to the drama, and Sheridan's adaptation of French situations and dialogues gave us a charming variety. The Club has done excellent work, and is worthy of a better representation than this hasty sketch supplies.

| Professor Walter D. Toy | President. |
| Professor Thomas Hume | Vice-President. |
| Professor Karl P. Harrington | Secretary and Treasurer. |

THE Philological Club meets on the last Tuesday night of each month in the academic year, except December and May. Its membership consists of the instructors and advanced students in the various language departments of the University.

The object of the club is to stimulate original investigation in philology and literature, and to afford an opportunity for the interchange of views on subjects relating to such work. At each meeting papers are read and discussed.

All persons interested in the work of the Club are invited to attend its meetings.

THE Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society was founded in the year 1883 for the promotion of scientific studies and the encouragement of individual research in the State of North Carolina and the South. It has numbered among its members many students and professors in the learned institutions of the State, and has published more than twelve hundred pages of scientific articles in its journal. It has collected over eleven thousand books and pamphlets in exchange for its journal. These are now placed in the University library.

This is the twelfth year of its existence. Its meetings are held on the second Tuesday of each month, and these meetings have always been well attended by students and professors, affording a means of intercourse and of improvement outside of the class room.

NO one of the numerous societies for special culture at the University is more popular than the Historical Society. Its monthly meetings are always well attended by interested members and friends, and the contributions made to historical knowledge are important and valuable.

Some noteworthy papers have been read during the past year, among which may be mentioned "The North Carolina Railroad" by the late Gen. Rufus Borringer, "The Huguenot Families of North Carolina," by Dr. Hume, and "Why North Carolina believed in the Mecklenburg Declaration," by Alexander and George W. Graham. Some of the papers have been published during the year, and others are expected soon.

Unlike the other organizations, this Society is more than a University affair. It is really the State Historical Society, incorporated by the Legislature, with members throughout the State.

THE religious life of the University centers here. The membership is near two hundred, the largest in its history of nineteen years. Devotional meetings are held four evenings a week, with an average attendance of fifty. Its work is done through eleven Committees. Monthly sermons are provided for the student body, and community at large from the best available pulpits. Five Bible Classes are an important feature of its work. It sent twenty-two delegates to the State Convention in Raleigh in March.

In two respects specially it has done great things for the University this year. In January, the services of Evangelist Pearson were secured for ten days. A revolution was made in the religious life of the Institution, there being near a hundred professions.

On February 24th a mass meeting was held in the interest of a building for the Association, "the greatest need of the University of to-day," says our President, Dr. Winston. In less than twenty-four hours, twenty-five hundred dollars had been pledged toward a twenty-thousand dollar building. Now six thousand has been pledged, mainly by students. Alumni of the Institution are expected to help the Building Committee materialize this plan.

Class Foot-Ball Games.

The following are the agreements upon which the Class Games were played :—

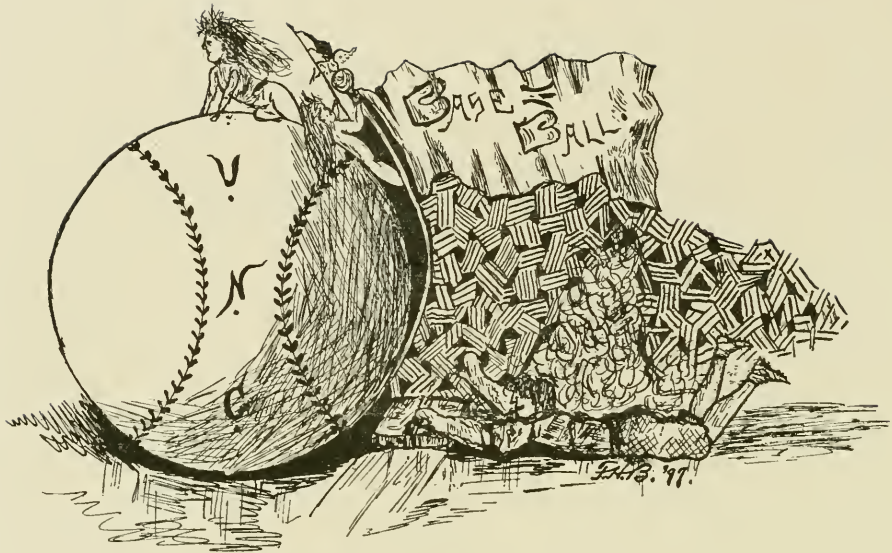

- * (1). The Seniors were to play the Sophomores, and the Juniors the Freshmen, the number of games to be decided by the managers of the opposing teams.
- (2). The winning teams were to play a series of three games for the championship.
- (3). Any difficulties arising were to be settled by a meeting of the eight managers and captains, and in case they could not agree, the point in question was to be referred to the advisory committee of the general Athletic Association.

As seen by the record of games the Seniors won from the Sophomores, and the Juniors tied with the Freshmen.

For some reason they never played off this tie.

This action on their part prevented the agreement being carried out, according to the second part. The Seniors would not consider them (the Junior and Freshmen teams) in the race for the championship until they carried out their first agreement, and this not being done, the Senior Class Foot Ball Team claimed the championship, and the Sophomores claimed second place.

* Taken from an article in Tar Heel, signed by the Managers and Captains of the Freshmen and Junior Teams.

BEFORE perusing what is to follow the reader must be in the proper frame of mind, and must remember that in every joke somebody must be the goat. We have tried not to drag any one too much, but if we or our artists have done aught that would be taken exception to, we beg leave to refer any one to our Committee of Three, who have promised to settle any and all disputes. The Committee is composed of James Corbett, Kirkpatrick, and Wince, and these gentlemen will be glad to see you at any time.

P. S.—Better make arrangements with your undertaker before calling on them.

An Extract from Malory's Works of Sir Arthur.

(Slightly paraphrased, by the permission of the Author.)

Chapter 6. HOW SIR WINCE ARRIVED INTO THE TOWN OF SIR WALTER, FOR TO FURNISH THE BATTLE WITH SIR CHRISTOPHER, AND HOW SIR WINCE FOUGHT AGAINST SIR CHRISTOPHER AND FINISHED HIS BATTLE, AND HOW SIR CHRISTOPHER WAS BEATEN.

NOW turn we to Sir Wince, who rode with his bundle of papers to the eastward, and as he came to the great town of Sir Walter, and there stayed for many days, and each day did he right gallantly do battle against many valorous knights, upholding his cause against them all. And on the tenth morn Sir Christopher sent unto Sir Wince and bade him make ready. And so Sir Wince arose and armed him, and there was a mass sung afore him, and he brake his fast, and mounted his horse, and went unto the court of the castle,* where they should do battle. So there was Sir Christopher, already, clean armed, on horseback, with his spear in his hand, and so they encountered, and whereas Sir Christopher brake his spear upon him, Sir Wince held up his spear, and touched him not. Then Sir Wince ran to Sir Christopher and smote him so that horse and man fell to earth. Then did Sir Wince alight down, and bid Sir Christopher yield or he would slay him. When Sir Christopher saw he might not escape the death he yielded him to Sir Wince, and he kneeled down and put the pommel of his sword to Sir Wince, and so he received him. And so, he promised Sir Wince never to be foe to the University, and thereupon, at Whitsuntide after, to come, he and his sons, and put them at Sir Wince's grace.

That, wit ye well, is the story of the meeting of Sir Wince and the Duke, who is known in this country as Sir Christopher Columbus Durham.

I'd sweep the earth from sea to sea,
And dust the cobwebs from the sky ;
Without, within, a model man, my part I'd play
So wise and well, and true and brave, that she
Would never have a chance to moan and say,
If I were he.

A man and a maid,
A leafy nook,
A word that's said
Beside the brook.

Her eyes downcast
Have happy look,
He's won at last
Beside the brook.

He's carried the day,
With joy he shook,
A stone gave way,
He fell in the brook.

Sweet Girl Graduates.

In feminine minds there is burning
A dangerous fever of learning.
Poor creatures !
Their features
Once pretty and innocent were—
Now see them—a sapient blur
Man evolution,
State revolution,
No subject too vast to be captured
By maidens with knowledge enraptured,
All histories,
All mysteries,
All sciences, knowledges, arts,
Are dear as the Lord of their hearts.
In fevered haste,
No time to waste,
They swoop upon Darwin and Spencer.
And erudite Germans much denser.
From causation
To damnation,
Abhorrent of everything secular,
They bound with a motion molecular.

Let me impress upon you the importance of the surface being flat, for if the surface is convex the physical law that the angle of incidence is equal to the angle of deflection would cause a division of the electromotive force, but we will pass over that point. Now right quickly, strike the bug to the ground and when you see that he is reposing on terra firma, steal upon him unawares with your right foot, and press him gently until he cracks. This is a very important point, to press him just right. If you get this point right clearly in your head you will never be troubled with it again."

(An incident of "Ye Olden Tymes," as found recorded in the Thirty-seventh Chapter of the Second Book of Chronicles.)

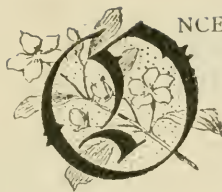

AND it came to pass that in the days of Ulysses the King, there was born in the Land of Buncombe a man-child; and his face was comely and fair to look upon, but his legs were crooked like unto the bow of King David. And the child grew and waxed strong and beautiful, so that he was called the "Beau of Blue Ridge," and verily the hearts of the Femalites went out after him. And his mother looking upon him, communed with her husband, saying: "Now is our son grown strong and beautiful, and verily the Femalites seek him, how they may capture him. Behold there is in a distant land, called Chapel Hill, a school over which the Prophet Winston reigneth. Wherefore let us take counsel together to send thither our son, that he may be brought up in the way of his fathers, even the way that the Lord loveth; for he is pure in heart and fair to look upon." And the thing pleased his father, for verily he loved him.

And in the ninth month of the second year of the reign of Boss Grover, the father fell upon his son's neck, and kissed him and bade him farewell, sending him to abide with the great Prophet. Now it come to pass that there sat at the feet of the prophet one "J. C.," a near kinsman to a priest of the tribe of the Durhamites, a mighty man and truly a son of Anak. And the Prophet communed with himself, saying, "Verily I have received the care of this pearl of great price, and now it behooveth me to see that it is not defiled by contact with impurity." And he cast his eyes upon the young men of his company for a companion for this "pearl," and his eyes fell upon "J. C.," and he chose him, for he said, "Here is an unblemished lamb from the flock," for he wot not what manner of men they were. And the young men of the company marvelled greatly at his blindness for verily they were "onto 'em." And of a truth the latter end of those two was more than the first.

And it reached the ears of his mother that her "Beau," even her precious "pearl" had been polluted, and she rose up in her wrath and commanded him saying, "Get ye out from abiding with him and depart and be ye separate, for it is written, Thou shalt not be unevenly yoked with unbelievers." And her son was sad at these words, for he loved "J. C." even as a brother; nevertheless he obeyed, for of a truth she was his mother and verily she carried the bag.

And there was great amazement throughout the school at these things, and the young men marvelled greatly among themselves saying, "What shall befall the Lord's people when there hath arisen one who can lead further astray the Beau?" And they were astonished.

NCE upon a night so dreary,
While I pondered, weak and weary,
Sitting thinking of the days that are no more ;
I was nodding, nearly napping,
Suddenly there came a tapping,
As if some one gently rapping,
Rapping at my chamber door,
'Tis some visitor, I muttered,
Tapping at my chamber door,
Only this, and nothing more.

“Enter, sir,” I said, “and truly,
If waiting you’ve been kept unduly, your pardon I implore ;
Truth is, I was napping,
And so softly you came rapping,
So gently came your tapping,
Rapping at my chamber door,
Scarce was I sure I heard you.”
And I opened wide the door,
Darkness there, and something more.

Open wide I flung the portal,
In their stepped an ugly mortal
That I have long detested, and will hate forever more ;
In there stepped a beastly bummer,
He had the cheek of a Chicago drummer,
Had this ugly, beastly bummer,
To come rapping at my door.
Wish I hadn’t heard him,
But I opened wide the door,
And will he leave me, never more ?

Not a moment stopped or stayed he,
Not a word of greeting said he
To me, standing at the door ;
But he straightway fell to smoking
My pet pipe ; ‘twas so provoking
That I almost felt like choking
Him, with him wiping up the floor ;
Or kicking the ugly, cheeky bummer,
Both of these, and a few things more.

And that bummer still is sitting,
Talking, smoking, chewing, spitting,
Cumbering my chamber floor ;
I wish that straightway he would leave me,
Not a bit ‘ll the parting grieve me,
But I fear he’ll not relieve me,
Take himself without the door.
And he’s nearly run me crazy,
He talked two hours or more ;
And I fear that he will leave me
Never, never, never more.

ONCE upon a time, in the reign of the good King Bourbon, there lived a little man named Tom. He was one time gazing from a second-story window of his home, and seeing a well near by, and feeling thirsty, he thought he would get a drink. He reasoned that the shortest distance between two points being the straight line, he would save time by going according to this well-established principle. He started, but the Genii, gravitation, seized him, and mother earth arose in such a manner that he had to push her back with his person, and verily the last state of this man was worse than the first. Moral: When reasoning out the psychological relation between a bottle of whiskey and a parabolic curve, never use yourself as a practical example.

(For a fuller dissertation on this subject, apply to T. C*.)

It came to pass on one cold winter night, in the reign of Cleptomaniac III, that two boys were shivering by an empty fireplace, trying to warm themselves by thinking of Tobe Connor's hair. One said to the other:—"Why freeze we here when they of two thousand dollar salary per month fame have fuel in plenty and to spare? Let's up and borrow a couple of scuttles." No sooner said than done; and they filled their buckets with fine, large lumps, and returned in great joy. But before they reached home a wicked Genii changed their coal into brickbats, and there was great sorrow and lamentation when they found it out. Moral: When borrowing Faculty's coal be sure to provide yourself with a buck-eye lantern.

"STAMPS" and "FUNK."

a * * * * * Dearest, when I gaze upon thy form, and see the hyperbolic, parabolic and elyptical curves that form your outline, I am transformed into a state similar to that when working out variables to their limits. Thou art a wonderful variable, whose limit is beyond my comprehension. Oh, let my arms and thy waist be synonymous curves and be not forever my asymptote. * * * * *

The drunken sot
Belabors not,
To collect his thoughts
'Twas vain;
He could not think,
Could only drink,
And now he's down again.

And as he lay
You could hear him say,
One more drink I crave,
I'm almost full,
Just another pull,
And I'll be out of the way.

In Conclusion.

MOST of the work on the Annual was done between the hours of one and four in the morning, and whatever it amounts to, the credit is due to the few editors who stayed up through the wee small hours and worked till the chickens crowed for dawn, and not to those who were conspicuous by their absence. Especially are thanks due to Mr. Hartsell for his steady work : for without him and a few others the '95 Hellenian would never have been published. They may rest assured that the work they have done is appreciated, and will ever be remembered by the

The University of North Carolina.

THE University has twenty-eight teachers, four hundred and sixty-eight students, eleven buildings, eight laboratories and museums for scientific study and research, two literary societies the Shakespeare Club, the Philological Club, the Mitchell Scientific Society, the Young Men's Christian Association, a Library of 30,000 volumes, open ten hours daily ; a Reading-Room with sixty papers and journals ; a Gymnasium with skilled instructor ; Athletic Grounds for base-ball, foot-ball, and sixteen Tennis Courts. There are three general courses of study, six brief courses, a large number of optional courses, with special and professional courses in Chemistry, Law and Medicine.

The Chemical Laboratories are fully equipped for all kinds of work ; the Law School has two classes with daily recitations, and lectures for each day ; the Medical School offers daily lectures, and requires students to dissect the human cadaver.

Discipline is firm, but manly and self-respecting. There is no demerit system nor espionage. Students are treated as gentlemen, and are expected to behave as gentlemen.

Students from other institutions of recognized standing are credited with such work as they have performed at those institutions.

Over seventy scholarships are available for needy boys of talent and character ; sixteen thousand dollars to be loaned to very needy and very talented boys. Time granted to those whose means cannot be used at once.

The University Summer School for teachers and others offers fine opportunity for study to those who are unable to attend the regular sessions of the University. The Summer School is held at Chapel Hill during the months of June and July.
